NATIONAL CHRISTMAS TREE SHINES BRIGHT AT 100

For 60 years, the GE Lighting business has been proud to design and provide lighting for the National Christmas Tree – for the first 57 years as part of General Electric, and the past three years as part of Savant Systems, Inc. Now known as GE Lighting, a Savant company, the business is again honored to partner with the National Park Foundation to help this year's tree shine bright.

This year's design, created specifically for the 100th lighting of the National Christmas Tree, includes strings of white lights along with strands of gold string lights, white sparkling twinkle spheres and white Bethlehem stars interspersed throughout. For daytime interest, the tree is accented with gold holographic diamond shapes for daytime glitter. Historical star tree toppers coupled with star ornaments from tree designs of years past embellish the base of the tree. A simple, yet elegant star topper finishes off the design.

Using the latest in LED holiday lighting products, this is the 14th consecutive year that GE LED lights, many of them ENERGY STAR® certified, have been used to light the National Christmas Tree. These lights use nearly 80% less energy and are a lighter weight option, helping to conserve energy and preserve the living tree.

The National Christmas Tree site is free to visit and will be open to the public Dec. 2, 2022, through Jan. 1, 2023. Hours are 10 a.m. – 10 p.m. Sunday-Thursday, and 10 a.m. – 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Lights on the National Christmas Tree and the 58 smaller trees that surround the tree turn on around sunset each evening.

★ THE NATIONAL TREE: AN AMERICAN TRADITION

1923

Accompanied by the Marine Band, President Calvin Coolidge lights the very first National Christmas Tree, a 38-foot-tall Balsam fir from his home state of Vermont, on the Ellipse on Christmas Eve

1934

Two Fraser firs were planted on the east and west sides of the Andrew Jackson statue in Lafayette Park, in hopes they would be used as the National Christmas Tree in alternate years.

1941

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill (right) joined President Franklin Roosevelt for the lighting ceremony in 1941, just days after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the beginning of World War II.

1954

Organizers introduced a three-week Christmas "Pageant of Peace," and "Pathway of Peace," lined by smaller decorated trees representing each of the states, territories, and District of Columbia.

Celebrating 100 Years

1963

The lighting ceremony was postponed while the nation mourned the death of President Kennedy. GE designed the lighting and decorations for the National Christmas Tree for the first time.

1983

The Washington Monument and a brilliant sunset frame the National Christmas Tree. During the holiday season, the National Christmas Tree is a popular subject for photographers.

2008

For the second time, LED lighting is incorporated into the decorations of the National Christmas Tree. This year, the majority of the display uses LEDs and is nearly 50 percent more energy efficient.

2015

Helping to kick off the National Park Service Centennial in 2016, the decorations celebrate the occasion with sparkling gold ribbon and silvery white stars and lights.

Preserving the Wonder of Parks

Grand Teton National Park

Our national parks tell the ever-evolving story of who we are – the story of America, in all its struggles and triumphs. Places that spark a sense of wonder, curiosity, and reflection, reminding us of where we've been while also inspiring where we go next.

As the official nonprofit partner of the National Park Service, the National Park Foundation, together with a passionate community of park champions, works to preserve the special places and stories that shape our past, present, and future.
